Books

(marks 5)

What words of wonder are our books?
As one opens them and looks,
New ideas and people rise
In our fancies and our eyes.

We sail along the page,
To some other land or age
Here's our body in the chair
But our mind is out there.

Each book is a magic box,
Which with a touch a child unlocks
In between their outside covers
Books hold all things for their lovers.

Test 15

Read the passage and answer the questions given below.

Geppetto took the marionette in his hands and placed him on the floor to see if he could walk; but Pinocchio's legs were stiff. So Geppetto took him by the hand and showed him how to put one foot before the other. When the stiffness was out of his legs Pinocchio began to walk alone, and run round the room; and finally he slipped out of the door into the street and ran away. Poor old Geppetto ran after him as fast as he could, but he could not catch him, for the little scamp jumped like a rabbit.

"Catch him! Catch him!" cried Geppetto; but when the people saw that wooden marionette running as fast as a racehorse, they stared at him in amazement, and then laughed and laughed until their sides were sore.

At last a policeman appeared. When he heard such a clatter, he thought that somebody's horse had got away from its master; so, he courageously planted himself in the middle of the street with his legs wide apart, determined to stop it.

While Pinocchio was still a long way off, he saw the policeman barricading the street and he decided to run between his legs before he realized what he meant to do; but he failed dismally. The policeman, without moving from his position, picked him up neatly by the nose and returned him to Geppetto, who meant to pull his ears well to punish him for his naughtiness. Imagine, therefore, how he felt when he couldn't find any ears: and do you know why? Because he had made him in such a hurry that he had forgotten his ears.
